

POLITICIANS.

Sermon by Rev. C. T. Brady—
Thinks Women Ought to Vote and Christians
Should Attend Ward
Meetings.

Rev. C. T. Brady, rector of Calvary church, preached from his pulpit last night on the politician. It was a good practical sermon.

Such politicians as Joe Herrington, A. P. Morey, O. A. Crandall, Dr. Scott, Frank Rosse, Col. Henry D. Hill, G. B. Simonds, G. L. Faulhaber, J. M. Offield, J. C. Thompson, Dick Yost, James Ramsey and others were present and listened with much attention to the rector's words of wisdom.

He did not take any text. He didn't have to in order to find something to talk about, for "The Politician" is a prolific subject. He is very numerous in all countries where there is a republican form of government.

The preacher announced that next Sunday night he would talk to the physicians of Sedalia, for it was St. Luke's day and St. Luke was a healer. He did not practice his calling in Sedalia or in Georgetown before the war. This is no advertisement for the doctors. They would all turn pale if they were to advertise.

Mr. Brady then gave out a hymn and insisted on the choir singing six verses.

Dave Dodge did not strike—but sang splendidly as did all the voices. When the rector went into the pulpit he was considerably embarrassed, but what there was to embarrass the man of God no one could tell, but the congregation kept thinking and looking.

Mr. Brady started out by saying that there were plenty of Christians of to-day, who did not take their Christianity into their every day lives as they should. They were many who put on their piety about in the same way as they would put on their Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. Their religion was assumed when they entered the portals of the church and they "shook" their Godliness when they left the house of worship, and that there were plenty of hypocrites in the church.

None of those present winced under this and we were glad they didn't, for if they had the speaker would have thought it applicable.

He quoted Senator Ingalls as follows:

"Purity in politics is an iridescent dream and the decalogue and the sermon on the Mount have no place in the political platform."

Ingalls has been a politician a long time and he ought to know whether the above is true or not.

"What is a politician?" inquired the speaker. He answered it by saying that every man who cast a ballot which is to assist in governing the country is a politician, and every man should do that. It was a Christian duty to vote and the voter should do so prayerfully.

This, we fear, would not hold good only in theory in modern politics.

If they were to pray before they cast their votes, they would spell it pray.

"Some men," said the speaker, "would call all politicians liars. This is a mistake for there are some good Christian gentlemen who were holding office and whose every act was done in the fear of their God," continued Mr. Brady.

Yes, that is probably a solemn truth, Mr. Brady, but they are monstrous scarce and in Kansas where they give 60,000 republican majority it would take a woman census taker to find them.

The rector was sorry that the women could not vote. He thought they would in a measure, if not wholly, purify the political atmosphere everywhere. The people should study the ethics of politics and a true politician must be a true Christian.

The ethics of modern politics, Mr. Brady, are the loaves and fishes and if there are any true Christians that attend the ward primaries they occupy back seats and don't say a word as large as a mustard seed. The loudest talker at a ward meeting is generally a heathen of the lower order of talent, and has a breath which savors of stale beer and onions.

"You are a ballot" said the speaker and he pointed the index finger of his right hand at Col. Henry D. Hill. All men of mature age who take part in the government of this broad land are ballots and the ballots are the government, and this is a government of the people" said the rector, emphasizing his words.

"The voters should follow no political idol—they should think and act for themselves and be men and Christians in all their movements looking toward the governing of the country and vote from a sense of Christian duty to the land, for the right."

The idol business is the cornerstone of modern politics, the BAZOO would inform Mr. Brady, if he does not.

realize it at this auspicious moment. It is generally a very brassy idol at that.

The rector went on to tell his audience that the true politician should not drink, he should be a moral man, have no itching palm and do what is right before God.

The speaker urged the Christians to attend the primaries. The bulk of the people in any community in this land don't attend church, and the bulk of the Christians do not attend the primaries. By attending primaries they could assist in purifying the politics of the country. He told an incident of the war of the British with the Afghans, in which a victory was won by the valiant acts of a fifer and drummer boy who enthused the army to fight after they were absolutely in a state of demoralization.

"When a fight is progressing, for any cause, those who shout the loudest are the first to run," if there is any running done. It was the duty of good citizenship in all cases to vote. It was the duty of every Christian to let his voice be heard and his ballot be deposited for the right.

The sermon was thoroughly practical and was an able effort. His words commanded the closest attention of his audience and one could readily see in their countenances, that they were heart and soul with the speaker. He spoke with great vigor and earnestness. Of course few will heed what he said when election time comes around, but he performed the act of an honest conviction and had the courage to tell it from the pulpit.

MISSOURI NOTES.

St. Joseph News.

—Knox county has a farmer who shucked forty bushels of corn in one day besides kill four hogs.

—Atchison county has a woman preacher who performs marriage ceremonies without insisting upon kissing the bride.

—Carthage has a haunted depot. The spook is supposed to be the soul of some departed commercial traveler come back to kick on baggage rates.

—The schools of Quitman have been provided with a new set of maps. The pretty schoolma'ams can now trace the course of the creeks without taking off their shoes.

—Eight ear loads of timothy seed have been shipped from Sumner this season, and there is enough left in the county to supply the farmers who wear it in their hair.

—Among the various headlines used by the press of Missouri in chronicling the death of the late Charles Stewart Parnell, "Parnell is Dead," is the favorite by several lengths.

—There will be a mass meeting of Christians in Jamesport this week at which forty members are expected to be present. The stereotyped preacher and yellow legged chicken jakes are now in order.

—Ready money with which to attend the reunion at Burlington Junction was obtained by three young ladies of Quitman from the profit of a nutting exposition. Great are the industries of Missouri.

—The Bucklin Herald offers to each new subscriber a copy of the song "Hug Me to Death, Darling," and a St. Louis type foundry is now busy making the logotype "Miss" for use in its mailing list.

—The Burlington Junction Post advertises twenty shares of bank stock for sale. To prevent any erroneous impression from getting abroad, the statement is made that the aforesaid bank stock is advertised for sale by a patron of the paper.

—John H. Parnell, a brother of the dead Irish leader, says he thinks the "uncrowned king" left a considerable estate, though much of it may have been consumed in the litigation forced upon him in his last years. At the time of his greatest affluence he was worth £150,000. He had an estate in County Wicklow, some stone quarries, copper mines and mills, but it is unknown whether they were mortgaged. John Parnell himself has a small fruit farm in Georgia. He is described as a rather seedy looking man of forty-seven, who dresses in a rough suit of brown goods and wears a faded slouch hat.

—Baby McKee is not such a Boaz he was before Ruth came to glean the harvest of a nation's admiring interest.

INGRAM ELECTED.

Election of Officers of the Grand Lodge To-day.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 15.—At the election of grand officers to-day the result was as follows:

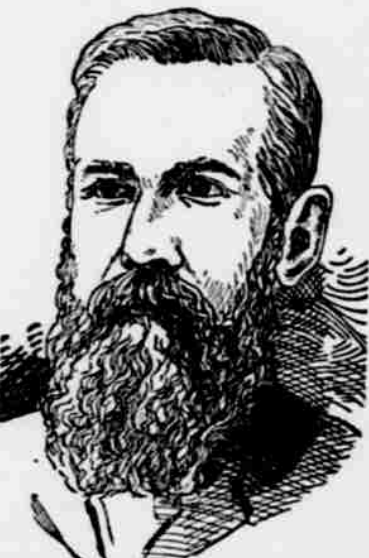

Most Worshipful Grand Master, B. H. Ingram of Sedalia.

Most Worshipful Deputy Grand Master, John R. Parsons of St. Louis.

Most Worshipful Grand Secretary, John D. Vincil of St. Louis.

Sedalians and all Western Missourians are rejoicing at the election of B. H. Ingram and he is receiving congratulations on all sides.

The Grand Lodge last night, late, so amended their by-laws so as to assess all Masons in good standing fifty cents per capita for sustaining the Masonic Home, one of the marvelous charities of the state.

Most Worshipful Grand Master Ingram, Elect.

Benton H. Ingram, was born in Greene county, Missouri, in 1838, removed to Sedalia in the summer of 1864. He was made a Mason in Sedalia Lodge No. 236, in the fall of '64. Was made a Royal Arch Mason in Sedalia Royal Arch Chapter No. 18, in 1867. He served several years as worshipful master of Sedalia lodge and eight or ten years as district deputy grand master and district deputy lecturer. He also presided one year over Sedalia Chapter, as high priest. He was elected grand junior warden of Missouri, in 1888; senior warden in 1889; deputy grand master in 1890.

Mr. Ingram was one of eight children and received a good common school education. He embarked in the drug business in Springfield, Mo., in 1862, but sold out in eighteen months and came to Sedalia, where in 1864 he opened a general country store, with S. S. Vinton, and continued in this business until 1871, when he lost his entire stock by fire. He then engaged in the fire and life insurance business. In the fall of 1872 he was elected collector of Pettis county and held the office one term. In 1879 he was appointed circuit clerk of Pettis county, by Governor John S. Phelps and at the expiration of the term was elected by the people to the office.

He was married to Miss Maria Grimshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Grimshaw, September 12, 1865, and is the father of five children, all living, Nellie A., now the wife of Mr. Walton, of Minneapolis, Minn., Martin G., Charles H., Juliette B., and Bessie H.

Politically, Mr. Ingram is a democrat and is popular with everybody.
